The GuardianWeekly

A week in the life of the world 29 MARCH 2024

GLOBAL REPORT

Headlines from the last seven days United Kingdom 8 Science & Environment 9 The big story Sudan/Chad The humanitarian disaster on the border10

SPOTLIGHT

In-depth reporting and analysis Russia

After Moscow's terror attack, a political blame game 15 Israel/Palestine

Why the UN ceasefire resolution matters19

UK/China What does Beijing want with British voters' data? 24

UK

How Catherine delivered a cancer bombshell.....25 Australia

The unavoidable truth about coral bleaching26 The struggle to raise the San

José and its treasure...... 30

FEATURES

Long reads, interviews & essays Unravelling the enigma of Hamas

By Joshua Leifer 34 The publicist who represents dead celebrities

By Tim Jonze 40

OPINION

Devi Sridhar

Despite Covid, the world is not ready for the next pandemic 45

▼ Rokhaya Diallo

France struggles to accept black success47

Gaby Hinsliff

It's not about women getting in - it's men keeping us out .. 48

> Ava Nakamura's very existence challenges white supremacy and its idea that people of colour should remain on the margins

CULTURE

TV, film, music, theatre, art, architecture & more

△ Comedy The laughing matter of

Steve Martin.....51

Art Has Damian Hirst taken a chainsaw to his reputation? ..54

Sculpture

Alabama's radical act of remembrance55

Books

The anxious generation and a warning about technology....57

LIFESTYLE

Tim Dowling The plumber's third act 60

Ask Ottolenghi

A capsule kitchen.....61 Recipe

Spicy baked eggs.....61

facebook.com/guardianweekly Instagram: @guardian

On the cover

This arresting portrait of Nadifa Ismail was taken by the Guardian reporter Mark Townsend, soon after Ismail had crossed the border from Sudan into the town of Adré, in eastern Chad, Like those who had gone before, the 38-year-old offered detailed testimony that fresh atrocities are happening in Darfur, a vast region in the west of Sudan. Photograph: Mark Townsend

SPOT ILLUSTRATIONS: